Ryan Norwood, Assistant Federal Defender (D. Nev.)

The recent dismissal with prejudice of the lead defendants in the Bundy case serves as a stark reminder that many prosecutors are prepared to hide exculpatory evidence in an effort to win at all costs. More importantly, the dismissal also serves as a lesson of what aggressive defense motion practice, team work and sheer tenacity can achieve when confronting unethical practices by prosecutors. This presentation will provide a roadmap on how to successfully litigate Brady issues.
